DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The McCoy Farmhouse was a double house in that one half was built of stone and the other of frame. The frame section has been demolished. The stone end of the house is two stories in height and seems to have been a latter addition to the frame section. It is two bays across by three deep with an inside end chimney in the north gable wall. This section appears to date from the Federal Period and resembles a townhouse of this era. The facade has a side bay entrance. The window sash is 9/6 on the first floor and 6/6 on the second. While there are no shutters remaining on the first floor there are some lowered ones on the second. The roof has a wooden shingle covering and a plain box cornice. In the center of the roof is a gabled dormer.

A view of the south gable end of the stone section reveals some information about the destroyed frame section. A fireplace built of brick has been built on both the first and second floor in the front half of the house. The size of the foundation and stuccoing on the stone wall indicate that the frame structure was three bays deep and four or five bays long and also two and a half stories in height. Beneath the stone section is a full cellar with an entrance on the north gable wall. There are several six panel doors and board and batten doors on the house.

A short distance from the house is a stone smoke house in ruins and a small bank barn.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

11

This house is a little unusual for this end of the county. Most other homes like this are in the First District and the Elkton area. More work should be done on this structure due to its endangered status.
